Spotlight Company IPV Energy Corporation

This month's featured company on OnGreen, IPV Corporation, has a molecular power cell technology that uses hydrogen/oxygen as a fuel to perform water and sewage treatment. IPV Energy not only sees the potential of hydrogen as the coming of age renewable technology of this century, but it also sees the synergistic relationship of hydrogen working with other renewables like solar and wind, where they can balance out their uneven performance and give them a totally stable 24-hour capability and at the same time lower their overall generation cost to the end user.
